The Grensda (Miss.) correspondent of the Atlanta (Ga.) Southern Confederacy, writing under date of July 9th, says that the remnant of Hallecks' forces that cover under their gunboats at Pittsburg landing do not number over 15,000 men.

Within the last 20 days no less than 150 Federal wagons, with appurtenances, have been captured or destroyed by the Confederates.

The latter frequently interrupt railroad comunication with Memphis by tearing up the track, demolishing trestle work, and destroying water tanks.

The two points in Mississippi which promise most active operations are Vicksburg and Tallahatchie river—Gens. Van Dorn, Breckinridge and Smith at the former place, and Gen Villipigue at the later. Ample preparations to receive the Yankees are made at both places.

The same writer states that Mrs. Galloway, wife of Col. M. C. Galloway, late Post Master of Memphis, and editor of the Avalanche, of that city, was taken from her home during the night time, by order of the Federal commander, Gen. Grant, and carried beyond the Federal lines. Grant's order was that she should be left in the wild woods without protection; but the Federal officer appointed to execute the order, having more kindly feelings than his brutal master, accompanied her to the house of a friend nine miles from Memphis—Mrs. Galloway promising the officer protection from the Confederate pickets. The charge against her was that she received letters from her husband of a treasonable character. A similar pronunciamento has been issued against Mrs. Letcy Pope, the pretext being that she displayed the black flag from her window on the 4th of July, instead of the Stars and Stripes.

Curtis was, at last accounts, hemmed in by Hindman, Roune and Branch, in Arkansas; and our sharpshooters were annoying Gen. Fitch so much that the latter threatened vengeance upon the citizens of a community near by, but Gen. Hindman promptly notified him of his intention to retaliate, whereupon Fitch's caloric cooled down and his diaphragm resumed its usual size.

Gen. Beauregard is at Bladen Springs, Ala., recruiting his health.

Latest from the North.

We are under obligations to Nathaniel Riddick, Esq., of Suffolk, (says the Petersburg Express.) for a copy of the New York Tribune of Saturday last, July 12. We glean from it the following intelligence:

THE CONFISCATION BILLS.

The Confiscation bills, after apparently a deadlock, were suddenly resuscitated yesterday by the Conference Committees, and a report was agreed upon, made to the House, and passed that body by a vote of 82 to 47—the Republicans almost without exception voting for it, and the Democrats against it. Three members from slave States voted yea. The bill adopted is much stronger than any heretofore proposed. It declares death for treason, and the freedom of a traitor's slaves; or he shall be imprisoned five years, fined $10,000, and his estate except slaves, shall be seized. For inciting rebellion or given it aid and comfort, forfeiture of personal property, ten years in prison, $10,000 fine, and slaves set free. The President is authorized, for putting down the present rebellion, to seize the property of all such persons and convey the proceeds to the Government. He is to proclaim that if in 60 days Rebels do not return to allegiance, there property shall be forfeited. Slaves of persons engaged in rebellion or who give aid and comfort to the Rebels, that take refuge in our lines, shall be held as captives of war and be forever free from slavery. So also shall be all slaves deserted by their masters and coming under control of our Government; also all slaves found at places occupied by our troops. No slaves escaping from one State to another State shall be delivered up except for crime or some offense against the laws of the United States, until the claimant shall make oath that he has not borne arms in the present rebellion, or given aid or comfort there to.—No person engaged in naval or military service shall decide on the validity of the claim or surrender such slave, on pain of being dismissed from the service. The President is authorised to employ as many persons of African descent for suppression of the rebellion as he may think fit and use them in such manner as he may deem best for the public welfare, and he is also authorized to make provision for colonizing the blacks beyond the limits of the United States. The President is also to extend to prisoners pardon and amnesty as he may deem expedient.

The effort to stay the passage of this important bill was very feeble; a point of order from Mr. Mallory, one from Mr. Cox, both overruled, and a motion to table it from Mr. Allen, which got but 42 votes, was all. It will doubtless pass the Senate at once, and then the people with look to the President for its vigorous enforcement.

Col. James Connor has not been under the necessity of submitting to the amputation of his leg, as we were incorrectly informed a few days since. We learn, on the best authority, that the limb is mending and doing well. It is hoped he will be able to use it yet.—Charleston Mercury.

AFFAIR AT GENERAL RIVER.—We have been kindly permitted to print the following telegraphic dispatch received by General Finegan on the 4th instant:

RECEIVED AT LAKE CITY, July 3 1862. From Gainesville, July 2.

To General Finegan:—A letter just received from Lieutenant Miller, informs me of a successful affair near the mouth of Crystal River between a detachment of Hope's company and a launch from the Federal gunboat Beauregard, in which the whole party of Federals was killed, wounded and captured, with their arms and launch. Captain David Stearns, commander of the Beauregard, was among the killed. D. L. YULEE.

On Tuesday three prisoners who were taken in this affair, were brought to Tallahassee. They report that the boat's crew consisted of eight whites and one contraband, who was acting as pilot. Four of the crew were killed, and one so seriously injured as to render it dangerous to remove him. One of those brought to Tallahassee was slightly wounded. The contraband was hung on the spot, and such, we understand, will be the fate of all contrabands re-captured in Florida. Hanging would be the penalty inflicted upon a white man deserting to the enemy, and we see no good reason why a negro should not suffer in the same manner for the same offence.—Tallahassee Floridian.

North Carolina Rail Road.

From the Salisbury Watchman.

The report of the President of this Road to the late annual meeting of Stockholders exhibits a gratifying account of its operations and financial condition.

The total earnings for the year sum up $791,063 68

Total disbursements, 440 420 16

Nett Earnings, $360,643 52

The increase of gross earnings over the previous year is $370,401 79; and of nett profit $269 363 93.

This statement embraces $90,008 69 payments of debts contracted prior to the commencement of the fiscal year; $6,363 68 for new cars built in the shops; $28,000 for payment of coupons on funded debt; and $25,000 for the sinking fund.

The total cost of working the Road from 1st June 1861, to 1st June 1862, is $241,957 17—about per cent of the whole earnings.

Whole number of passengers, exclusive of soldiers,	117,325 00
Whole number of soldiers,	87,057 00
Total of passengers, during the year,	204,382 00
Earnings from private freight	$148,863 00
Government freight,	123,535 40
Total freight earnings,	$272,388 40

The Road is said to be in much better condition than this time last year. It has been ditched from Concord, East, and 93,082 new sills have been put down. As many more are needed to put the road in sound condition.

The Shops have been the salvation of the Road, under the direction of the Master Machinist, Mr. E. H. Marsh.

The Road is to have Telegraph Offices at nearly all the towns, and freedom of the line for the use of the road, at the expense of keeping up the poles.

We have heard some queer incidents of the late battles before Richmond, and some interesting accounts of interviews between Federal prisoners and Confederate officers and citizens.

A couple of gentlemen from this town, one a physician, recently went over the battle-field. At one place, at a field hospital, they met up with three Yankee Surgeons who had fallen into our hands, and been detained to attend to the Federal wounded left on the field by McClellan in his "strategic movement."

These men, not knowing from what State our friends were, expressed their surprise at the ubiquity of the North Carolina troops, and at their determined fighting. They had thought North Carolina perfectly safe for the Union. When asked how they could reconcile the number and determination of the North Carolina troops with the existence of a Union feeling, they were puzzled, but said that no doubt they had been conscripted and made to fight, but admitted that the style of their fighting did not agree with this theory. It appears to be certain that the Federal soldiers have been taught to believe that North Carolina is all ready to declare for the Union and Abe Lincoln.

Some gentlemen well known here called last week to see a Pennsylvania Colonel, now a prisoner in Richmond, one of the gentlemen having known him before the war broke out. He was very much surprised to hear that North Carolina was not a strong Union State only waiting for a strong liberating Yankee army to enable her to throw off the yoke of Jeff. Davis.—So they had all been assured by Governor Stanly—so the Newbern paper had assured them, and so they had been convinced by extracts in the Newbern paper from Raleigh papers, that there was a strong party in the State down on the Confederate government.

A gentleman who had been a prisoner at Fort Macon, and remained on parole at Beaufort, got off from from there recently under a flag of truce. He says that the Minoclu troops there had great rejoicings over the defeat of the Confederate army and the capture of Richmond. The Fort fired a salute on the head of it.

No doubt the same thing was done at all the Yankee posts.—Wilmington Journal.

The commercial editor of the N. York Independent estimates that the total losses of the nation and of individuals, traceable directly and indirectly to the war, cannot be less than ten thousand millions of dollars.

CHARLESTON, March 18, 1861.

THE South Carolina Railroad Company having determined to discontinue the department of the service, in which the undersigned has been the forwarding Agent of the Company for the last four or five years, has associated with him the Old Guard in the department, and, under the name of GANTT & STONY, will continue to RECEIVE and FORWARD such articles as may be consigned to his care. His trust, his untiring personal attention, to retain a very liberal share of the business of the department.

Parties are reminded that all goods now reaching this port from points beyond the Confederate States of America, must be entered at the Custom House, and that duties are payable on such as are not purchased on or before the 25th February inst., and taken on shipboard on or before the 10th March inst., save such as are in the free list. It is therefore necessary that remittances be made to pay the duties where duties are payable. NEED IN NO CASE BE GIVEN THE MARKS OF GOODS in those cases, where the amount has been paid. Prompt compliance will prevent delay and expense, as all articles not so paid and perfected will be stored by the Custom House officers. PROSPECTUS OF THE HILLSBOROUGH RECORDER,

DEVOTED TO

POLITICS, AGRICULTURE, MISCELLANY, GENERAL NEWS.

PUBLISHED BY

DENNIS HEARTT.

HILLSBOROUGH, N. C.

WITH the present volume the RECORDER commenced the fortieth year of its existence, the first number having been issued the 10th of February, 1820; during all which time we have labored to make our paper interesting and useful, and we hope that in these particulars we have not been altogether unsuccessful. It is our wish to make the RECORDER a good Family Paper, devoted to Politics, Agriculture, Miscellany, General News, &c., with a view to the entertainment and improvement of the farmers and citizens of the circle in which it is distributed. Our Agricultural department we endeavor to fill with the best selections we can make from all sources, giving preference to such as will be of practical use to the farmer and cultivator; and in this particular we hope to make the RECORDER as valuable to the agriculturist as any periodical of a purely agricultural character. In our Miscellaneous department, we shall continue to be, as we have always been, careful to select such articles as will have a tendency not only to amuse, but to improve the mind and heart. While we shall be thankful to receive well-written articles to adorn our columns, we are not so ambitious of originality as not to prefer selected matter of superior merit, to loosely-written and ill-digested articles, though ornamented at the top with the coveted words—"Written expressly for the RECORDER." In our News department we shall take especial pains to present to our readers the latest intelligence; and to enable us to do so we have facilities equal to those enjoyed in any portion of the state, except those favored with telegraphic communication.

A NORTH CAROLINA PAPER

THE TIMES

A large eight page Weekly Journal, published in Greensboro, N. C., at $2.00 a year; $1.00 for six months.

THE TIMES offers to merchants, manufacturers and the mechanic arts, a medium for advertising, that in the extensive circulation of its patronage in all parts of the State, it is the cheapest one of the publishers to present in its columns whatever may interest the people and establish this fact. The publishers would earnestly appeal to the families of North Carolina to give THE TIMES a trial; try it for six months, to see if it is not as well to patronize home papers, as those from abroad; for only by the former's success and a State pride, and its greater circulation and consequent usefulness, can we hope to have a paper worthy of the State. Give THE TIMES a trial and then let it stand upon its merits.

WHAT IS SAID OF THE TIMES.

"The Times I regard as one very first of our Southern Literary Weeklies."—Rev. C. F. Deems.

"I know of no Weekly published anywhere, that is conducting a purer patriotism than The Times."—Rev. J. E. Edwards.

"Added to its political character, it is very decidedly a literary paper."—Wilmington Herald.

"One of the handsomest weekly papers published in the United States."—Raleigh Standard.

"Has the people of North Carolina encouraged their own enterprise."—Raleigh Register.

The Literary Paper of the South

"EVERY FAMILY SHOULD READ IT"

THE TIMES.

THE LARGEST! THE CHEAPEST! THE BEST! ILLUSTRATED SOUTHERN FAMILY PAPER!

THE TIMES is neither political nor sectarian, but is the constant aim of the Editors to fill its columns with the choicest historical, Literary and Family reading, and with a large selection of all the news of the day, both foreign and domestic.

The fifth volume commences with the new year 1863. Engagements have been made to make this the most brilliant year in the history of THE TIMES. It will commence with—

Three Beautiful Prize Stories.

Its illustrations will be increased; and its typographical appearance will be improved by a still better dress. The Publishers are determined to keep pace with the improvements of the age; their motto is "PROGRESSION," and as the circulation of THE TIMES enlarges each year, they are determined to add new attractions to its columns and make it the literary paper of the South. With these inducements the Publishers confidently expect several thousand increase in circulation.

CHARLOTTE, March 1, 1862.

A Capital Order.

The annexed Order issued by Gen. Van Dorn, is copied into the Augusta Constitutionalist under the offensive caption of "Butlerism in Mississippi, and concludes that "an independent Press and independent people cannot long submit to such an edict."

We differ with our Augusta cotem. and express the opinion that about the very best thing our Government officers can do is to arrest some of the Editors of the South who hide themselves from the battle field and seize every opportunity to denounce our Generals and disclose to the enemy [whether they are paid for doing so or not we are not prepared to say,] the movements of our army and army officers.

Such persons who are too cowardly to fight in defence of the country essay to be very brave in their editorial chairs and attempt to plan for a battle and denounce those who are risking all while they skulk from duty.

Had we the power we would hang every Editor who disclosed the movements of our Generals or their commands because they thereby give aid to the enemy of our country. Such men are not a whit better than the invaders of our soil and robbers of female virtue in the South. They defeat the best conceived plans of our Generals and encourage the enemies of our country.

Gen. Van Dorn has issued a general order, No. 9, in which occurs the following section:

3. The publication of any article in the newspapers in reference to the troops is prohibited, and if the editor or proprietor of any newspaper published in any of the counties hereinbefore designated shall publish any article or paragraph calculated to impair confidence in any of the commanding officers whom the President may see fit to place over the troops, such editor or proprietor shall be subject to fine and imprisonment, and the publication of the paper shall be thereafter suspended.

At a meeting of the Masonic Fraternity of the 11th Bethel Regiment, N. C. Troops, held in camp on the 14th day of July, A. D., 1862, A. L. 5862. Lieut. C. W. Alexander being called to the Chair, the following Preamble and Resolutions were unanimously adopted:

WHEREAS, It hath pleased Almighty God in his wise dispensation to take from our midst our beloved brother, Captain P. J. LOWRY,

Resolved, That we deeply deplore the loss of our brother, who, by his kind disposition and sterling virtues as a gentleman and brother, has firmly endeared himself to all, and we sincerely trust and believe that the Grand Master in calling him from his earthly labors has given him eternal refreshment in that Lodge where all true Masons meet.

Resolved, That we wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of our deceased brother, and published in the Wilmington Journal, Charlotte BULLETIN and Democrat.

DISAPPEARANCE OF NEBULAE.—The discovery of the disappearance of one or two nebulæ in the heavens has excited the liveliest interest among astronomers. So unlooked for a phenomenon fairly startles the hardest understanding. Objects hitherto regarded as firm enduring, and fixed as the pillars of the universe, have been found as unstable as an autumnal meteor. What great revolution in astronomy is about here to be made, no one can conjecture. The awful mystery only heightens on reflection, and vague, shadowy foreboding of the "rottenness of the pillared firmament crowd upon the imagination."

COULD NOT AVOID JACKSON.—The Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post says:

Certain enthusiastic friends of McClellan now blame the Government for not sending him all the troops in the vicinity of Washington a fortnight ago. I understand that the Department makes the reply to this criticism, that it made little difference to Jackson what disposition was made of our forces here. If all the available troops had been sent two or three weeks ago to Gen. McClellan, then Jackson would have taken Washington, which would have been a great deal worse than a partial reverse before Richmond.

The Natchez Courier, of the 1st, says that one morning last week, while a war vessel of the enemy was coaling at the Natchez shore, her officers is said to have remarked, that the U. S. fleet desired to close out with Vicksburg in short order, that all her heavy gunboats might return Atlanticward, as war was expected to break out between Great Britain and the North.

Is Washington Safe.

From the New York Times (editorial,) July 7.

If "Stonewall" Jackson be not dead—and there is no doubt thrown over the statement that he was veritually and actually killed in the late battles—is there no danger of his taking a column and with it marching suddenly in the direction of Washington. The movements of this daring rebel during the last two months have been as rapid and successful as they have been extraordinary in other respects. It is but a few weeks since he pounced upon and defeated the forces of Milroy and Schenck in the Shenandoah Valley. From that work he entered upon the pursuit of General Banks, drove him to Winchester, defeated him there, pursued him a distance of seventy or eighty miles to the Potomac; then retired, and during his retreat defeated Fremont and Shields; then swept over the Blue Ridge and across Eastern Virginia to the Chickahominy, and attacked the right wing of our main army ten days ago—with what success is known to our readers—having in this space of time fought four battles at distant points, and traversed a distance of four or five hundred miles. In each of the instances his movement was more or less of a surprise, and each of them would have been declared by most men quite impossible before it was actually done. It would be undoubtedly a difficult thing for Jackson, whether he be or be not dead, to take twenty thousand Confederates and move North to Fredericksburg, thence to Manassas, thence eastward to the Potomac, and it is not likely he will try. We believe, moreover, that our troops now at Washington and the points named, are fully prepared to resist such a movement. At least we hope so. And we also hope that our troops now in the Shenandoah Valley and elsewhere in the Eastern Virginia, will be disposed of so as to effectually prevent any other northward movements of the rebel, if he be alive, or of his ghost, if he be dead.

Second Brigade, N. C. Troops.

Movements of the Brigade Since June 24th—Its Action in the Recent Battles Before Richmond—Severe Fighting—List of Casualties, Etc.

Special Dispatch to the Petersburg Express.]

IN CTMP, NEAR DRURY'S BLUFF, July 14, 1861.

As the "Express" circulates extensively in North Carolina, it may not be entirely uninteresting to a large number of your readers to glance over a brief account of the doings of a North Carolina Brigade which was lately encamped in the immediate vicinity of your city; and in writing this, I must be permitted to say distinctly, that, where all behaved so gallantly, it would be far from my wish or intention to write one word or sylable that might in the least detract from the well earned fame of any.

On Tuesday, the 24th of June, the Second brigade commanded by Brigadier General Robert Ransom, Jr., commenced moving towards Richmond. The Brigade consisted of the 24th Regiment, Col. W. J. Clarke; the 25th, Col. Rutledge; the 26th, Col. Z. B. Vance; the 35th, Col. M. W. Ransom; the 48th, Col. R. C. Hill; the 49th, Col. S. D. Ramseur—a portion of the brigade reached Richmond before night, and marched immediately out on the Williamsburg road and bivouacked for the night. Others arrived at so late an hour that they remained in the capitol square until morning. After an early breakfast, the General, accompanied by his staff rode out to Gen. Huger's headquarters. As soon as the General had reported, he gave his instructions to the staff, and they all started off down the road in search of a suitable place to camp the brigade, and to carry orders to the different regiments, several of which were then on the march.

Going a mile or two down the road, heavy firing was heard in front, and very soon it was ascertained that three of Gen. Ransome's regiments—the 25th, the 48th and 49th, having opportunely arrived, while Gens. Wright and Mahone's brigades were getting into a very interesting skirmish—were ordered in to support them. They had marched straight from Richmond without stopping till they halted in front of the foe to take their positions. The General being in the rear at the time, coming from General Huger's headquarters, galloped rapidly forward as soon as he became aware of what was going on, and taking his position on the field, despatched an aid to order forward the three remaining regiments to a nearer point so that they could be thrown into the field in a very few moments.

The firing continued very heavy, and the musketry was almost incessant. Our wounded were being constantly brought from the field, and though the Yankees were posted behind breast works and hidden by a pine thicket, and our men exposed to a constant and heavy fire and one regiment (the 48th I think,) to a cross fire from five regiments, yet there was not the slightest indication of faltering among them. Wearied, hungry, thirsty and exhausted as they were, they fought like veterans, till they finally drove the hell-hounds from their works. Pickets were then posted, and the three reserve regiments, 24th, 26th and 35th, were thrown forward. About sun down the Yankees, having evidently received reinforcements, opened the ball again with a tremendous fire, which met with so spirited a response from our boys that it was not long before the cowardly scoundrels found it convenient to retire again. They were evidently foiled, and did not seem to know what was best to be done. During the night, however, they came in overwhelming force, shouting and yelling like so many Indians or devils, and made what they designed should be a demolishing attack on the 35th, the 24th and the 26th. The manner in which Cols. Ransom, Clarke and Vance received them, however, convinced them that some things were not quite so easy to do as others, and they retired—but continued all the time to throw grape canister and shell over into the field, and several of the former and some of the latter fell near the General and staff. Meantime, the Yankees having taken on a supply of Dutch courage, concluded to try the yelling experiment a second time, with increased chambers. On they came, their noisy yells sounding above their guns; but whom our boys did them the kindness to respond to their fire they found they would have quite enough work to do for the balance of the night in removing their killed and wounded, and so they gave up their little game of "bad" and went to work to get their dead and wounded from the field, but morning dawned and found the interesting little job unfinished and they never did finish it. One of the men engaged in this yelling fight was taken on the following Monday and told us that our men killed so many of their's that they thought they were firing into each other.

Thursday morning, there was a little firing and again on Thursday and Friday and Saturday evenings, but nothing to equal the fight of Wednesday and Wednesday night. The Second North Carolina Brigade however had a hand in all the fighting that took place on the Williamsburg road after their arrival, and it is a little remarkable, that the battle opened upon the same spot where that of "Seven Pines" opened on the 30th May. Gen. Ransom with his staff slept upon the field every night.

On Sunday the Brigade moved down the Williamsburg road several miles, and then crossed over to the Charles City road, with the view of intercepting the retreat of the Yankees toward the river. The evidences of a precipitate retreat were everywhere obvious. Wagons, guns, commissary stores, &c., and above all the most complete and elaborate fortifications that have been constructed, I reckon, during the war, were all abandoned and the frequent land explosions heard in front told plainly that they were destroying all they had time to destroy, that they could not carry.

Nothing of material interest occurred to Ransom's Brigade till the following Tuesday. They were ready and eager for the fray, while Mahons and Armstead were engaging the fire on Monday evening about a mile ahead, but Gen. Huger held them in reserve.

On Tuesday however, they won imperishable renown. Ordered into the field at a late hour, unsupported, the entire Brigade headed by Gen. Ransome himself, who rode on horseback in front, marched across an open field for nearly a mile, under perhaps the heaviest fire of the whole battle, and that too from three batteries, supported by the whole of the Infantry Regulars. The Yankee missiles were mowing them down but still they did not falter. Ramseur fell, Ransom (Col. M. W.) fell, Pettway fell—but only the latter of these was mortaly wounded, while the two former (though unable to lead the Regiment) remained upon the field till the whole brigade was withdrawn. Hosts of brave and noble spirits in this grand and daring charge—which lacked but support to have made it succesful—made the highest sacrifice which liberty could demand, and all, both the living and the dead, may well claim from the historian who chronicle the battles of Malvern Hill a laurel chaplet. Instances of individual valor were occuring over the whole field. The Field Officers, Company Officers and privates, all seemed ready to follow their General to the cannon's mouth, and every man stood to his whole duty. It was kept up till ten o'clock at night, when the Yankees called out to Ramseur and Clark's Regiments that they were firing into their friends and caused them to cease firing, but poured another heavy fire into them. The darkness made it necessary to withdraw, which was done in good order, under a constant heavy fire.

Captain J. L. Henry, Chief of Ordnance, captured nine prisoners and I might mention various instances of individual merit, but, where all did so well, it is perhaps not well to particularize.

Gen. Ransom's favorite nag "Fanny," was wounded in the foot by a piece of shell.

Large quantities of clothing, blankets, guns, tents and other articles were captured, part of which are now in Petersburg.

This was the last and hardest fighting—while it lasted—of the battle.

Ransom's brigade is now where it is ready to strike another blow whenever the Yankee hordes will give us a chance.
